SUPPLEMENT
TO THE
South-Carolina Gazette.

Numb. 274

LONDON, Febr. 3.

THE Lord Chancellor having reported his Majeſty's Speech, it was moved to reſolve, That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, to return the Thanks of the Houſe of Lords for the ſame;

——And to aſſure his Majeſty, That amongſt the many convincing Proofs, which his Majeſty hath given of his paternal Care of the Rights of His People, nothing can fill their Hearts with more grateful Sentiments, than that ſincere and affectionate Concern which his Majeſty hath ſo often declared, for the many Injuries ſuſtained by His Trading Subjects in America. That the Honour of his Majeſty's Crown, and the true Intereſt of His People, are, and ever will be, inſeparable; and as his Majeſty hath, on all occaſions, demonſtrated to the World, that he has both equally at Heart, it was impoſſible for Them not to have the ſame Dependance for their real Security and Preſervation.

That the gracious Regard which his Majeſty had been pleaſed to expreſs for the Reſolutions and Advice of his Parliament, was a great Inſtance of his Royal Goodneſs; and that though his Majeſty's conſtant Deſire, out of Tenderneſs to His People, to avoid involving theſe Kingdoms in the manifold Inconveniencies of War, muſt incline Him to approve the Beginning with more moderate Meaſures; yet they never entertained the leaſt Doubt, but that the true Greatneſs and Fortitude, which inſpire his Royal Breaſt, would induce Him to exert his utmoſt Power, in vindication of Navigation and Commerce; & in doing Juſtice to himſelf, and his Subjects, if the Conduct of the Court of Spain had made ſuch Methods neceſſary.

That they begg'd Leave, on this Occaſion, to offer to his Majeſty their unfeigned Thanks for his great Goodneſs and Condeſcenſion, in acquainting them from the Throne, that a Convention is concluded, and ratified between his Majeſty and the King of Spain, whereby Reparation is agreed to be made to His Subjects for their Loſſes, by a certain ſtipulated Payment; and that Plenipotentiaries are appointed for regulating within a limited Time, all thoſe Grievances and Abuſes, which have hitherto interrupted our Commerce and Navigation in the American Seas; and that his Majeſty would be pleaſed to order the Convention and the ſeparate Articles to be laid before them.

That they ſhould fall ſhort of thoſe warm Impreſſions of Gratitude, which they felt in themſelves, as well as be wanting in their Duty, if they did not return his Majeſty their moſt thankful Acknowledgments for his Royal Care, in making Uſe of the Confidence repoſed in his Majeſty, with no other View, but the general and laſting Benefit of his Kingdoms. That Reparation for paſt Injuries and Loſſes, and effectual Security for the future, founded upon Juſtice, and warranted by Treaties, have been the great Views of his Majeſty and Parliament, in this National and important Affair; and if thoſe Purpoſes can be attained, without plunging the Nation into a War, it muſt give the trueſt Satisfaction to all his faithful Subjects, who cannot but be as deſirous to preſerve the Peace, as they are able and ready to defend and vindicate their Rights againſt the Incroachments of all Aggreſſors.

That they are deeply ſenſible how unbecoming and pernicious it would be, at any Time, to ſuffer either Prejudice or Animoſities to mix themſelves with Parliamentary Deliberations; and that his Majeſty's gracious Recommendation to them, particularly to avoid them at this important Conjuncture, could not fail to awaken in them a more than ordinary Caution on that Head. That Great-Britain had but one common Intereſt, conſiſting in the Security of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government, and the Welfare and Happineſs of his People: And that when his Majeſty was pleaſed to exhort them to Unanimity, it was only calling upon them to unite for their own Preſervation. That they therefore beſeech'd his Majeſty to accept the ſtrongeſt and moſt affectionate Aſſurances, that they would zealouſly and chearfully concur in all ſuch Meaſures, as ſhould be moſt conducive to thoſe great and deſirable Ends.

To which His Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following moſt gracious Anſwer.

My Lords.

I Thank you for this dutiful and affectionate Addreſs, and for the Dependance you expreſs on my Care, to make Uſe of the Confidence you repoſe in me, for the general Benefit of my People. You may rely on the Continuance of my Endeavours to perfect the Accommodation with the Court of Spain, in ſuch a Manner, as may be moſt for the Honour of my Crown, and the true Intereſt of my Kingdoms; and that I will purſue ſuch Meaſures, as ſhall appear to be moſt conducive to the future Security of the Trade and Navigation of my Subjects.

LONDON, Febr. 10.

On Thurſday Evening was a very numerous and ſplendid Appearance of Nobility & Gentry at the Maſquerade in the Hay-Market, where among the many whimſical and humorous Characters which were ſeen there, the moſt remarkable, and which ſeem'd the moſt to engage the Company, was a Spaniard very richly dreſs'd, who call'd himſelf a Knight of the Ear; as a Badge of which Order he wore on his Breaſt ſomething in the Form of a Starr, whoſe Points ſeem'd ting'd with Blood, on which was an Ear very curiouſly painted, and round it written in Capital Letters, as the Motto of his Order, the Word, JENKINS, and acroſs his Shoulder hung inſtead of a Ribband, a large Halter, which he held up, from Time to Time, to ſeveral Perſons diſguiſed like Engliſh Sailors, who ſeem'd to pay him great Reverence; and, falling on their Knees before him, with many Tokens of Fear and Submiſſion, ſuffer'd him very tamely to rummage their Pockets, which when he had done, he very inſolently diſmiſſed them with Strokes of his Halter: But what ſerv'd to make the Jeſt ſtill more compleat, was, that ſeveral of the Sailors had a bloody Ear hanging down from their Heads, and on their Hats theſe Words Ear for Ear, while on the Hats of others of them, was written, No ſearch or no Trade, with more ſhort and witty Sentences, all alluding to the ſame Matter.

Feb. 13. Yeſterday printed Copies of the Convention, lately concluded between Great-Britain and Spain, were delivered to the Members of both Houſes of Parliament.
